Community loses 'a true gentleman'

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

Didsbury and area residents are mourning the loss of an influential man this week who was the province's first minister of seniors' affairs and spent years furthering educational goals within Central Alberta.

Roy Brassard, former Olds-Didsbury constituency MLA and chairman of Chinook's Edge School Division, lost his battle with leukemia on Friday, October 17 in Calgary at the age of 78.

An emotional Doug Wagstaff, board chair of the Chinook's Edge School Division summed Brassard up in two words: true gentleman.

"Anyone that had anything to do with Roy knew they were dealing with a man of high integrity."

Brassard was born in Ontario and moved to Didsbury with his family in 1975. Owner of Brassard Chev Olds, he eventually became a consultant for General Motors along with opening Logos Bookstore in Didsbury.

Roy took a political turn in 1986 after being elected to the provincial legislature to represent the Olds-Didsbury constituency.

In 1997 - the same year the Olds-Didsbury riding merged with another riding and became the Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills constituency - Brassard was elected as chair of the Chinook's Edge School Division school board.

Brassard made headlines in 2006, when it was released that since Brassard was Catholic, he could not serve on the public school board. Though Brassard was a born and raised Catholic he did not believe that religion should stand in the way of his job. Being told that he could run for the Red Deer Separate School Board, Brassard felt that this would be misrepresentation as his children had gone to the Chinook's Edge School Division.

"This is not me alone but about all current and future school board trustees in the province," said Brassard in a 2006 CESD press release. "People should have the right to serve as a member of the public school board in their community without consideration to their religious convictions. After all, we have the right to send our children to public schools regardless of religious background."

The board of Chinook's Edge School Division launched a complaint with the Human Rights Commission of Alberta arguing that Brassard was discriminated against under sections 4, 7, and 9 of the Human Rights Citizenship and Multiculturalism Act.

Support gathered behind Brassard in this fight and he stayed on the board until 2007 when he retired to spend more time with his family.

The Human Rights Commission case is still pending.

Wagstaff remembers Brassard to not only be a true gentleman but a committed man to the community and his family.

"He is going to be dearly missed, his kind and gentle nature was something that really stuck with people and our hearts and prayers go out to his family. He was a tremendous family man. I know it will be a difficult time."

Brassard's funeral is to be held at the Zion Evangelical Missionary Church in Didsbury, Thursday at 1:30 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, Brassard's family is asking that donations be made to the Heroes program at Westglen School.

BEST BUSINESS IN TOWN - Lowell Grasse, Kelly Erickson, Brad Derksen, Jon Cox and Rosemary Robillard of Grasse Lumber are proud to serve the town. Grasse Lumber was named Didsbury's Business of the Year at the Didsbury Chamber of Commerce Small Business Award banquet, Saturday night. Grasse Lumber staff missing from the photo are: Matt Cox, Jim Miller, Glen Eldridge, Garry Anderson, and Earl Gullacher. See story on page 7.

Richards elected MP

BY DAN SINGLETON
For the Review

Newly-elected Wild Rose Conservative MP Blake Richards – the first new MP in the central Alberta riding in 15 years – says he is looking forward to getting down to work in Parliament.

Richards soundly defeated all challengers in the Oct. 14 federal election in Wild Rose, garnering 36,700 of 50,550 votes cast in the riding, which includes Olds, Didsbury, Carstairs and Sundre.

During the campaign, Richards said addressing justice issues will be one of his priorities during his first term.

"The first and foremost issue I'm hearing from people is the need to get tougher on crime," said Richards. "People have generally been pretty happy with the direction they have seen us heading as the Conservative government."

Green Party challenger

BLAKE RICHARDS

Lisa Fox finished second with 6,390 votes, NDP challenger Jeff Horvath finished third with 4,350 votes, Liberal Jenn Turcott finished fourth with 2,882 votes and Libertarian Krista Zoobkoff finished fifth with 250 votes.

"I'm looking at the work ahead and that's my focus," said Richards. "Now I'm looking ahead at the task I have in front of me in office. I've always said it is important for me to represent the views of the constituents and the best way for me to do that is go to Ottawa and establish a strong presence there and demonstrate that I'm there and I'm serious and that I am going to be working hard for my constituents. That's the job one for me."

Richards said one of his first priorities will be to set up a communication system so he can keep in touch with constituents.

"I would like to try to set up some kind of a mechanism whereby I can have hours where I'm in different communities, so people can have a chance to have face-to-face meetings with me," he said.

"And beyond that I want to attend as many events in the riding as I can. I want to set up consultation mechanisms on different issues that are important in the riding, like agriculture. That's one of the things I want to focus on right away."

Abundance of grizzly bears not wanted

Well, they held the big Bergen bear meeting, if you can call it that, Oct. 10. As well as I could estimate, there were well over one hundred concerned local residents in attendance, including the plucky lady who killed the grizzly, on the wall in the Olds F&W office, when it reared up in front of her, while she was checking calves. They were going to charge her for that.

I say, if you can call it a meeting, because it was touted as an "information" meeting, which meant we were lectured, with only selected written questions allowed, and what was the reason for videotaping the podium?

The F&W brass took the opportunity from their ivory tower heights, to tell us yokels how to live with bears.

It was suggested we do as they do in Canmore in dealing with bear problems. Bear-proof garbage containers, get your garden vegetables and fruits off the trees as soon as possible, and definitely no bird feeders through the summer.

As for defending yourself, they hauled out the usual gadgets, bear spray, air horns and bear bells.

The one honcho described how the bear spray was effective at about 10 feet. Very nice - if you see the bear in time, and have time to react.

Nobody addressed the basic fact that we don't want or expect to have to deal with rogue bears, in what the pros refer to as the white zone.

Amid the wailing and hand-wringing that grizzlies are endangered and that there are only 230 in the area of Highway 11, it turns out the grizzly census is only conducted on provincial land and that the sow and by extension her three cubs were not in the DNA data bank, which is intellectual speak for, they weren't counted. Who knows how many others, like her, are out there.

I have lived and hunted in this area nearly 30 years, and my observation is that there has been a steady increase in the number of grizzlies in the area, both in the green zone and out here, in what is densely settled agricultural land.

The province has decided that the population of grizzlies should be allowed to increase to 1,000 to provide a viable breeding population, in a province where the population is projected to double in the next 20 years.

They tell me that before the Europeans came, grizzlies ranged out onto the Prairies, as far as present-day Winnipeg.

Surely, nobody in his right mind thinks we can recreate that sort of scenario.

Perhaps, some of these bears could be relocated to the suburbs of Calgary and Edmonton, so we could let our children play without worry and maybe check the cows on dark nights, without looking over our shoulders to see what is standing there.

Don't get me wrong. I have a strong admiration for bears of both kinds, but I and a great many other people feel we shouldn't be forced to live with them in our backyards. Why should we be complacent victims, so the chatting classes, in the major centres, can say we have an abundance of grizzlies, where they never tread?

Voting shouldn't be this difficult

SABEEN AHMAD

I have a confession to make...after encouraging so many to go out and vote last week...I sadly did not vote.

I can't say I was too busy, I can't say I didn't know where to go...but the truth of the matter is that the process for me to vote, took more time and effort than it should have.

Having moved here from Saskatchewan about a month ago, I did not have my licence switched over to prove I was an Alberta resident. So when I contacted the constituency office I was told to contact Elections Canada. Elections Canada advised me to contact my Saskatchewan constituency office and ask for a special (absentee) ballot. When I contacted them they told me to call another department at Elections Canada. I was calling around in circles for two days.

So, as I continued to keep up to date with the different candidates and their parties, I was hopeful that I would be able to vote. But sadly, I didn't get to.

I know I could have mailed in for an absentee ballot, however by the time I realized that I would need one, it would not have gotten there in time for me to receive a ballot as the deadline was October 6th.

Unfortunately, it turns out that this election had the lowest voter turnout. So I, clearly, was not the only one to not vote. As I sat at home watching the results roll in, I couldn't help but notice my friends' statuses on Facebook encouraging people to vote, "I voted, did you?"...While others had quite the opposite to say, "This election was a waste of time."

On the news reporters were out at pubs to see what students had to say about voting and the election. One student admitted to not voting and said that it was hard for students to get out and vote because they are busy with classes all day. While other students who are from other towns or provinces are required to place their vote in that town...if they can't get out there, then they can't vote.

It shouldn't be this hard. Those people who couldn't get out and vote could have an impact on the results of this election...but we'll never know.

Harper has big job ahead

DAN SINGLETON

Newly re-elected Prime Minister Stephen Harper says Canadians made the right choice in returning his Conservative government to power for another term.

Although he again failed to win a coveted majority, Harper lead his party to a stronger minority government, giving him a strengthened mandate to rule.

Whether Harper's Conservatives will be able to "work together" with the opposition parties any better than during the last Parliament remains to be seen.

Yet with no single opposition party capable of toppling the minority government without the support of other two opposition parties, Harper will probably get his wish for MP co-operation, at least in the short term.

Even separatist Bloc leader Gilles Duceppe, who saw his party hold off concerted Tory attempts to make ground in Quebec, seems to have nothing to gain by seeing the minority government topple within the next couple of years.

While the 2008 election didn't drastically change the political landscape at the federal level - deep divisions remain between all the parties in areas such as environmental protection and health care - the new Parliament is a new start for all MPs and hopefully they will make the most of it.

With the just-completed federal election costing about $300 million, taxpayers in Alberta and every other province and territory are hoping MPs will work hard to avoid another election anytime soon.

With that in mind, maybe it's time for Prime Minister Harper to back his assurances that he plans to work hand-in-hand with the Liberals, NDP and Bloc with a public promise that this time he will stick to the election law that mandates the next election in Oct. 2012 and not a day earlier?

Meanwhile, MPs from all parties should now put aside their differences and get down to the real job Canadians want them to do - saving Canada from being swept away in the ongoing global economic crisis.

Many awarded during chamber event

Grasse Lumber Sales was named the 2008 Small Business of the Year Award recipient during last weekend's Didsbury Chamber of Commerce's Small Business Gala.

In a tough group of very worthy businesses that included Unique Stained Glass Works, Didsbury Value Drug Mart, and Webb's Bulk Food Store, the selection committee determined that Grasse Lumber would take home the title this year, according to chamber officials.

Grasse Lumber is a business that began in a 30-foot trailer has grown over the past 14 years to almost 4,000 square feet of retail space.

Lowell Grasse of Grasse Lumber has watched his business grow exponentially over the years, and the addition of plumbing and electrical supplies has proven to be a significant milestone as the business now offers the complete package.

Add to that the sale of windows and paint, and you have a business that puts the "local" in your "Local First" shopping experience.

Lowell actively supports organizations in Didsbury, such as the Lions Club for their playhouse raffle, and the Ag Society and Zion Youth Group with temporary shelters for their activities. Grasse Lumber was nominated by its own staff members, Kelly Erickson and Matt Cox.

For the third year in a row, the chamber hosted the People's Choice Award for Small Business Week. With an unique approach to "courting votes," the Ulla-La Boutique was the winner, hands down!

For every ballot cast for them, the ladies at Ulla-La gave one dollar to the Cody Dolan fund, aimed to help the young Didsbury boy as he battles cancer. As a result, almost 300 ballots were cast for the boutique.

Jackson W.I. update

The October meeting Jackson W.I. was held at the Cremona Gold and Silver on October 14 with 13 members present for a luncheon meeting with a variety of salads.

As it was voting day Dorit Bird told us of the times before 1918 before women were declared 'persons' and thus eligible to vote. They were jailed, beaten, given little or no food, even tortured when they petitioned to be allowed to vote. The new movie 'Iron Jawed Angels' depicts the battle these women waged. Quebec women received the vote in 1940, Manitobans in 1916. There are six nations in the world today where women are still not allowed to vote.

Our roll call was "an international person who is making a difference" and we had many varied suggestions including Allan Greenspan, David Suzuki, Paul Brandt, Terry Fox, Sarah Palin, Elizabeth May, Stephen Lewis, Paul Newman.

There will be a diabetics session at the Gold and Silver on Thursday, Nov. 13 at 10 to 11 a.m. This is for all diabetics and their families. Our W.I. will look after the snacks. Diabetics will be able to fill out forms so their testing strips will be received free of charge.

Cremona School is promoting academic excellence in the school and has asked our W.I. for a donation. The school is trying to increase and promote self esteem with some rewards. The motion to assist in this project was passed and $50 will be donated to this project.

We got letters of thanks from the Bird Family children for our help in the 90 year celebration for their parents. The Central Alberta Women's Shelter also sent thanks for the clothing and needed articles for the women and children.

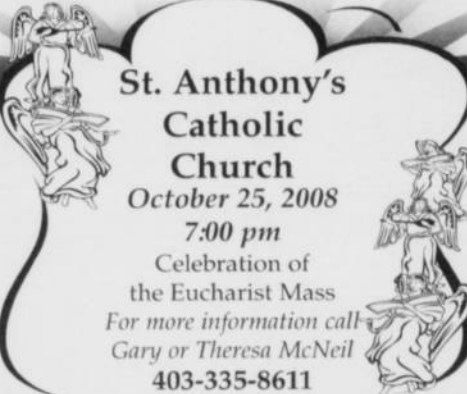

We will donate a wreath for the Nov. 11 Remembrance Day Service and Mary Thompson will be our representative.

We will have a bake table at Winterfest on December 6th and will be assisting in selling the new Cremona History Book.

Judy Bellamy and Marilyn Ridley will act as a nominating committee for the offices of secretary and committee heads for the coming year.

Our next meeting will be at July Bellamys on November 11th at 1:30 p.m. and we need written suggestions for 2009. We would enjoy having visitors. Please phone Ev Robertson at 403-337-2052.

BRASSARD-ROBERT ROY OCTOBER 1, 1930 – OCTOBER 17, 2008

It is with great sadness the family of Roy Brassard announces his passing on October 17, 2008. Roy passed away peacefully at the Peter Lougheed Hospital in Calgary surrounded by his loving family after a battle with leukemia. He is survived by his loving wife of 58 years, Sheila, and his children Scott (Janice), Cal (Shawna), Terryl (John), Alison (Mark) and his 6 loving grandchildren Jessica, Graham, Jonathan, James, Brian and Kira.

Roy was born in Thunder Bay, Ontario on October 1, 1930. He moved to Didsbury, Alberta with his family in 1975 where he assumed ownership of a car dealership which became Brassard Chev Olds. After 7 years he sold the car dealership, worked as a consultant for General Motors, and opened the Logos Bookstore in Didsbury. In 1986, after selling the bookstore, Roy was elected to the Provincial Legislature as a representative for the Olds Didsbury constituency where he served as an MLA and Cabinet Minister for 11 years. Roy retired from politics for 1 year before running for the Chinook's Edge School Division school board where he served as Chairman until October 2007. Roy officially retired at the age of 77 years to spend time with his wife and family. Roy enjoyed woodworking, horseback riding, fishing, golfing and was a huge fan of all of his children and grandchildren's sporting activities. He was deeply committed to serving his community, particularly children, always believing one person could truly make a difference. Roy was a man of deep faith which was reflected in his strength of character and the integrity which governed his life. He truly loved people and was strongly respected for his wisdom and guidance both in his personal and professional life. The funeral service will be held at Zion Evangelical Missionary Church in Didsbury on Thursday, October 23, 2008 at 1:30 p.m. Zion is located at the corner of Hwy 582 and 20 Ave in Didsbury.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Heroes Program at Westglen School in Didsbury. Heroes is a character education program which attempts to build resiliency in youth by focusing on the values of confidence, character and integrity. According to the Heroes student manual, a hero "is someone who uses their gifts and abilities to make a positive change in themselves and others." Roy was a Hero.
